2. The disciplinary meeting

See 'Holding a disciplinary meeting' (paragraphs 14-16, p8)

Tell the employee in writing:

- what they are alleged to have done wrong
- the time and place for a meeting
- they have the right to be accompanied

CHECK:

- carry out a thorough investigation before any meeting
- give the employee copies of any information to be used
- arrange another meeting within five days if the employee or accompanying person cannot attend
- consider fresh evidence if necessary

At the meeting:

- state the evidence
- let the employee put their case
- let the accompanying person ask questions

Adjourn to consider any action (if necessary) and think about:

- previous sanctions
- employee's record
- any special circumstances

Make your decision:

- inform the employee of the decision and the right to appeal
- monitor the situation and keep an open mind

See Chart 3: 'Taking disciplinary action' and Chart 4: 'Disciplinary appeals'

3. Taking disciplinary action

For cases of alleged 'gross misconduct' different rules apply (see paragraphs 35-36, p14)

Unsatisfactory performance

Misconduct

Issue an 'improvement note' setting out:

- timescale for improvement
- review date
- support to be given
- opportunity to appeal

If sufficiently serious (see paragraph 24, p10 of the Code of Practice) go to the final written warning

Issue a written warning giving:

- consequences of failure to improve
- opportunity to appeal

CHECK:

- an employee can be accompanied to all disciplinary and appeal meetings

Issue resolved

Final written warning:

- consider any further misconduct or unsatisfactory performance
- meet to discuss proposed action
- put the warning in writing
- inform employee of the right to appeal

Issue resolved

CHECK:

- if the issue is resolved stop any action
- if warnings have expired treat as new case

Dismissal: You must follow the minimum statutory discipline procedure before dismissal (or action falling short of dismissal such as demotion or suspension without pay)

See Chart 5 for statutory discipline and dismissal procedure (paragraphs 26-32, p11)

4. Disciplinary appeals

An appeal should:

- usually be lodged within five working days of the disciplinary decision
- be heard by someone senior to the manager who took the original disciplinary decision (wherever possible)

At the appeal meeting:

- consider any new evidence
- allow the employee to comment on any new evidence
- do not be afraid to overturn a previous decision

Appeal finding:

- tell the employee the result of the appeal and the reason for the decision
- confirm the decision in writing

CHECK:

- remind the employee of their right to be accompanied
- appeals are a good opportunity to identify and rectify any faults in the disciplinary process

6. The grievance procedure

An informal approach between employee and line manager is often the best way to proceed

Employees should inform the employer of their grievance

Hold a meeting in private and remind the employee of their right to be accompanied

Consider a response:
inform the employee in writing of your decision
arrange an appeal if necessary

A more senior manager should hold the appeal (where possible)

CHECK:

- if the employee wishes to use the grievance as a basis for an application to an employment tribunal the grievance must be set out in writing (see paragraph 69, p24 and Annex C, p41) for the statutory grievance procedure
- employers may wish to have separate procedures for handling complaints about bullying or harassment

How we can help with

Disciplinary and grievance procedures at work

We inform

You can phone our helpline on 08457 47 47 47 and get straight through to one of our experienced advisers. Everything you say will be completely confidential. There is also lots of information on our website www.acas.org.uk where you can look up a topic in the 'A to Z of work' section or check out rights and responsibilities in 'Rights at work' or search for one of our publications.

We advise and guide

Our publications give practical advice on getting it right in your workplace and have been revised to take account of the new statutory minimum procedures for handling discipline, dismissals and grievances introduced on 1 October 2004. Publications offering advice on this subject include:

Code of Practice on disciplinary and grievance procedures (included in this pack). This is the good practice guidance employment tribunals use when deciding whether treatment has been fair.

Acas handbook on Discipline and grievances at work. The complete "how to" guide with practical examples and sample documents.

Acas Self Help guide on Producing disciplinary and grievance procedures. This provides straightforward guidance giving step by step advice and easy to follow examples.

Getting it right guides for small businesses. These pocket sized guides on Dealing with grievances and Discipline at work provide vital checklists to help small firms "get it right".

We train

Try our online learning package on discipline and grievance handling – it's free on our website. Or come along to one of our training sessions in your area – these range from two-hour key points sessions on discipline and grievance handling, including the statutory minimum procedures or half or full day "getting it right" sessions providing practical guidance on introducing and operating procedures which are fair and easy to understand. Look on our website for more details or to book a place.
